

"Creating Excitement in Your Landscape Painting Using Light and Focus" Take your landscape painting to a new level with the dynamics of light and focus. I will show you how to turn a standard scene into a dramatic and interesting painting by emphasizing a focal point. I will also cover the basic principles of effective landscape painting: color harmony, atmospheric perspective and compositional design.

This workshop is open to complete beginners through advanced students. I shall work individually on the students' levels. Students may use oil or acrylics. They may bring in their own photos to paint from, or use some of the many that I have. This workshop should be good preparation for Laurel Daniel's Plein Air Workshop.

Workshop September 20 -21 --- Eve Larson --- 512-477-5031

Create drama in your paintings using space and figures! This workshop will center on using photo references to design strong, interesting paintings of interior and exterior spaces. The subject can be indoor scenes, with or without people, or landscapes, with or without people.

I shall demonstrate how I design a painting from photographs, and help students to make the most of their abilities to compose exciting paintings with good composition.

Students can choose to bring in their own photos, or I shall provide photos for them to use. The emphasis of the workshop will be on composition and effective use of color. I will be happy to work with students on any project they wish to undertake.
